5. THAMES BASIN HEATHLAND SPECIAL PROTECTION AREA – POSITION STATEMENT ON CURRENT CAPACITY

[Portfolio Holder for Planning: Councillor Gates]
[Wards Affected: All Farnham Wards]

In 2006 English Nature (now Natural England) produced a draft Delivery Plan to guide local authorities on the protection of the Thames Basin Heathland Special Protection Areas (SPAs) heathland birds from the threat of new residential development. Avoidance measures were required to comply with the European Habitats Regulations. Without these measures no further residential development was possible within 5km of the SPA which affected the majority of the Farnham area.

The Council's Interim Miniplan (April 2007) outlined avoidance measures to overcome the halt in planning permissions including the introduction of a developer tariff. Farnham Park was identified as a Suitable Accessible Natural Greenspace (SANGS) that could be used for avoidance.

Natural England confirmed an interim area of 21.25 hectares provided for by Farnham Park. This was reduced for an initial 3-year period to 10.9 hectares because Natural England felt that car parking was the major limiting factor to increasing public access to the SANGS area.

The table below gives the up-to-date position on the numbers of permissions that have been granted and the remaining capacity until a further area of the SANGS can be released.

Figures to 02/12/09 No Change to last month	Total SANG Area (ha)	Total SANG Capacity (dw)	Dwellings Allocated to Date	Amount of SANG Allocated (ha)	Remaining Unallocated (ha)	Remaining Unallocated Capacity (dwellings)
Development	10.9	567	558	10.7	0.2	9
